

POINTS WORTH KNOWING ABOUT OUR BRUSHES.

All Whitewash, Wall, Paint, and Varnish Brushes are liable to shrink and become loose if kept in a warm, dry place.

All good workmen know how to remedy this defect, and a word by dealers to consumers will often prevent annoyance to themselves and loss to the manufacturers.

Keep your brushes in a cool place.

To preserve brushes for future use, clean or wash them out thoroughly and hang up. Be sure and swell them before you attempt to use them again.

Never put a brush in newly slacked lime or acids, as it will destroy the bristle. We have had the best brushes returned as worthless, it being claimed "they are not all bristle," and on examination have found the bristle destroyed by having been put into hot lime or acids.

Do not overlook the fact that if one brush in a package is good, the balance must be the same. Large quantities of bristle are prepared at one time to insure uniformity, and one brush out of such a lot cannot be bad and all the balance good; where such cases occur it cannot be the fault of the brush.

Experience teaches us that in whitewash brushes, of the best quality particularly, when in constant use in warm or hot weather, and never having a chance to dry out, the bristle, no matter how good they are, are bound to rot under such circumstances, and against such use as this we cannot guarantee.

We do not brand our cheap lines of goods with our firm name, and such goods do not carry any guarantee with them, but are put on the market to supply the demand.

We do not list a complete line of Brushes, and we will be glad to furnish a complete catalog on request.

Prices subject to change without previous notice.
